

Janet Moody

Biography.

Janet Moody is a modern languages graduate from Trinity College Dublin and a Scholar of TCD. She has worked as a researcher/reporter in RTE and as a Eurovision news co-ordinator in Geneva. Following a Masters degree in Education from TCD, she has worked as a teacher of both French and English, with children, young people and adults. She has undertaken research projects for the Distance Education Centre at Dublin City University and has edited distance education texts in a wide variety of subjects.

She joined the Department of Education and Professional Studies (now the School of Education) at the University of Limerick as a lecturer in 1997 and worked there till her retirement in 2010. She was Course Director of the Graduate Diploma in Education (Languages). Her particular areas of interest were classroom management, Teaching Practice and the use of reflective practice for students in teacher education.

Since her retirement she has completed a Masters in the History of Family at the University of Limerick.